

Fairtrade Directory of Supporting University Practitioners and Academics - Application Form

We are expanding the Fairtrade Directory of Supporting Practitioners and Academics to include academic staff, as well as academically aligned colleagues such as librarians, learning development specialists, research support staff, and others whose roles directly contribute to teaching, student learning, or knowledge exchange, to join.

The Directory brings together colleagues across the UK who are passionate about Fairtrade, ethical trade, sustainability, and global justice. Members are happy to be contacted by universities, postgraduate and doctoral researchers, and other members of the academic community for collaboration, research guidance, or shared areas of expertise, helping to build a stronger, more connected Fairtrade network.

Benefits of Joining

- Connect with like-minded academics and researchers.
- Collaborate on Fairtrade-related projects and publications.
- Support students with research and learning opportunities.
- Contribute to the Fairtrade University Award (criterion RC007).
